My Brothers,

Freemasonry teaches us that our obligations extend far beyond the walls of our lodges. They reach into our homes, our communities, and into the lives of those who once walked beside our departed brethren. Among the most sacred of these obligations is the care and remembrance of our Masonic widows—our Sweethearts.

These women stood proudly with their husbands as they lived the principles of our craft. They supported their journeys, celebrated their achievements, and shared in the quiet, unseen sacrifices that allowed our brothers to serve. When a brother lays down his working tools, it becomes our solemn duty to ensure that his Sweetheart never feels forgotten.

This booklet is more than a guide; it is a reminder of who we are as Masons. Each call, each visit, each small act of kindness reaffirms our commitment to brotherly love and relief. When we honor our widows, we honor the memory of the men who once sat among us.

I encourage every lodge to embrace this program with sincerity and consistency. Let us continue to be the steady hand, the warm voice, and the reassuring presence our Sweethearts deserve.

Fraternally,

Honoring the Legacy of Our Departed Brethren

When a man becomes a Mason, he joins a family bound by honor, compassion, and tradition. That bond does not end with his passing. It extends to those he loved—especially his widow, who remains forever a cherished member of our Masonic family.

This program helps lodges maintain meaningful, consistent support for our Sweethearts, ensuring they never feel alone or forgotten.
